

Claim 2 (canceled): The methods of claim 1 further comprising the step of placing the filler information in a variable pattern within the digital information.

Claim 4 (canceled): A communications system comprising:

(a) a first computer adapted to selectively generate and transmit certain information;

(b) a second computer, in communication relationship to said first computer, and containing a plurality of addressable memory locations, and further adapted to receive said certain information, and to use this information to define and select only a portion of said contained memory locations.